The Curry School of Education at the University of Virginia is seeking highly qualified applicants for a non-tenure track faculty appointment in Assessment and Gifted Education. The incumbent will be part of the faculty in the Department of Curriculum, Instruction, and Special Education where they will be responsible for face-to-face and on-line teaching and the related student advising for graduate and undergraduate courses.

A doctoral degree in Gifted Education or a related field is required by the start of the position. At least one semester of experience teaching at the university level is required, as are three years classroom teaching experience in elementary education settings. A respect for diversity and the richness of human difference is essential. Also required are knowledge of:
- the education of gifted students, including gifted students from historically under-represented populations;
- creating classroom assessments ranging across traditional tests to alternative forms of classroom assessments for classroom use and for research purposes; and
- culturally responsive pedagogy appropriate for academically diverse learners.

A record of refereed publications is preferred. The ability to use technology in innovative ways to enhance instruction and to teach online is strongly preferred, as is a record of successful collaboration with diverse groups of students and faculty. Rank is contingent upon qualifications.

The University of Virginia is located in beautiful Charlottesville, Virginia, 100 miles south of Washington DC along the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The area is widely known for its scenic beauty and historic significance and is often ranked among the most exciting, healthiest, and favorite places to live. UVa is consistently noted as a top-tier public institution according to multiple ranking systems. The Curry School of Education's Special Education and Elementary Teacher Education programs are ranked #7 and #11 respectively among the Best Education Schools by U.S. News.

To apply, visit http://jobs.virginia.edu and search on Posting Number 0617281. Complete a Candidate Profile online and attach a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, and contact information for three references. Applicant screening begins October 12, 2015, and the position will remain open to applicants until filled.

This position may be eligible to convert from non-tenure track to tenure-track based on school promotion and tenure guide lines and depending upon the enrollment of the program.

For questions about the position, please contact Scott Kozuch, HR Associate, at sk9g@virginia.edu.

The Curry School of Education and the University of Virginia are Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employers. We seek to build a culturally diverse intellectual environment and welcome applications from women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities.